hearing and that has a material bearing on the issue whether there are any conditions of release that will reasonably assure the appearance of the person as required and the safety of any other person and the community."

In this case, there is no indication provided that the proferred information did not exist at the time of the initial detention hearing, and indeed, there are no specifics provided in the current motion as to the amount of cash collateral allegedly available from his brother or the value of any home equity offered. More importantly, however, the posting of cash collateral in this instance will not alleviate the risk of flight in this case. The defendant's contacts are in Canada and in China. His wife is applying to become a permanent resident of Canada. The defendant has no real ties to the United States. If released, he simply has no incentive to face the charges in this case, and as such, remains a risk of flight.

Accordingly, the motion to reopen the detention hearing (Dkt. No. 10) is denied.

DATED this 6th day of December, 2006.
